JUDGE BROOKS HERE.

THE NEW ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY FOR OKLAHOMA.

HIS IMPRESSIONS OF THIS TERRITORY.

And a Brief Sketch of the Life of a Self-made Man—He is Not a Carpet-Bagger, and Predicts Great Things for Guthrie.

Judge and Mrs. Caleb R. Brooks, accompanied by their three sons and one daughter, and Miss Linda Allen, sister of Mrs. Brooks, arrived in the city yesterday from Mount Sterling, Ky., and are quartered at the Hotel Royal. Judge Brooks is the newly appointed assistant district attorney for Oklahoma Territory, and comes from his Kentucky home to enter upon his duties. He is now casting around for a suitable residence in which to install his family, and also making the acquaintance of Guthrie residents. He casts his fortunes with Guthrie and intends to stay by her and the grand Territory of which she is the capital through thick and thin.

Judge Brooks is a giant, both physically and mentally. He possesses a round figure with broad shoulders upon which sits a splendid head. He is of dark complexion and wears a short, dark moustache, and from beneath an ample forehead are two deep, searching eyes. His disposition is jovial, and he experiences no difficulty in making and holding friends and acquaintances. The LEADER reporter called at the Royal Hotel last evening and met the distinguished Kentuckian who is loud in his praises of the West, and Oklahoma particularly. The judge recently returned from Washington and possesses a fund of information regarding the silver question and the recent elections, in which, by the way, his native State rolled up the usual handsome Democratic majorities.

Judge Caleb C. Brooks was born in Logan county, Ky. At the age of 7 years he went with his mother to Bath county, that State. Like many of our distinguished public men, he received not the benefits of a collegiate course of instruction, his education being gained from the common schools of Owensville, the county capital of Bath county. In 1876 he began the practice of law and was elected to the legislature from Bath county in 1877. In 1880 he was elected by a general majority commonwealth's attorney from the Thirteenth Judicial district of Kentucky, comprising ten counties, and served six years. These, aside from the present, are the only political offices Judge Brooks has held, although he was twice a candidate for congress in 1890-92, being defeated in each instance by a fraction of a vote. His successful opponents were the present congressman, Lyle, and his successor, Congressman Kendall, now deceased. Judge Brooks moved to Mount Sterling in the year 1883, before the expiration of his term as commonwealth's attorney, and formed a copartnership in the law business with Hon. A. R. White, which partnership was dissolved only a few days ago upon the judge starting for this city.

The subject of this sketch comes from good Democratic stock. His mother came from Virginia and his father immigrated to Kentucky when a mere child. A singular incident in the life of his mother's father was the fact that while residing in one house on the same site, he at different periods lived in three different counties and two different states. Judge Brooks' late appointment was announced six weeks ago, but it was directed to be made by President Cleveland last June. The charge that the new assistant district attorney is a carpet-bagger will not hold water, as he has brought his family and means to make his home in Oklahoma.

Judge Brooks will be 40 years of age in August next, and he rejoices in a happy family consisting of a charming and interesting wife and four children. "I am greatly impressed with Oklahoma," is a great commonwealth. People happy, industrious and prosperous, it far exceeds many of the eastern states. You have here a great agricultural country. Agriculture is naturally the basis of trade, and Oklahoma is bound to prosper. Although a man cannot help but hold fond remembrances for his native state, nothing can prevent his loving and clinging to his adopted home.

Judge Brooks is brainy and brilliant. He will give universal satisfaction in discharging the duties of the office to which he has been called.

A MONSTER BUCK INDIAN. Joe Tarsey Brought In From the Osage Country Charged With Cattle Stealing.

Joe Tarsey was brought in from the Osage country and lodged in jail on the charge of stealing cattle. Tarsey is an Indian, and one of the biggest bucks ever seen on the streets of Guthrie. He is about 10 years of age, weighs 350 pounds and stands easily six feet high.

Tarsey has been furiously mad ever since his arrest, and swears he will get even with some one. "Wah, wah!" piped he, "me no guilt. Hell! Hell, white man full of pie. Steal cows my own country, no man's business. Wah, wah!"

Tragedy Near Cushing. A sad tragedy is reported from Cushing. A man supposed to be John Jaycocks, and his wife, were preparing to retire for the night the other evening. He carried a pistol in his hip pocket; falling to the floor, it was discharged; the ball penetrating the bedclothing and entering his wife's head at the back and coming out at the forehead, killing her instantly.
